READING FEMINIST TEXTS TOGETHER: A DISCUSSION SERIES

The Department of English is hosting an interdisciplinary series of five seminars, each devoted to discussing particular texts which use and extend feminist insights. Each seminar will feature a discussion leader who will give a brief talk about the relation of the text to the activities of her discipline; the larger part of each seminar will be given to discussion from the floor about the text in question.

Texts will be on reserve in Cameron Library from mid-January; during the month of January, they will also be arriving in the bookstore where they will be shelved in the Women's Studies Section.

For further information, please contact Professor Shirley Neuman, Dept. of English, 3-75 Humanities Center, Ph. 432-2180.

All seminars will be held in Humanities Center 5-20.

Dr. Murray Straus from the University of New Hampshire will be on campus in the departments of Sociology and Family Studies and will give an all day seminar sponsored by the Centre for Criminology (Soc.) on the topic of Family Violence. While not directly related to women's studies his was the initial work that opened up the research area on Family Violence. Dates: February 12 - 15. Dr. Jim Hackler in Sociology or Dr. Les Kennedy in Sociology can provide details.

I will be on leave next term.
