Naming them after ladies was fun for the early ^{careless} pioneers + also seem to have allowed feeble men to impress the ladies. For instance Agnes Lake was originally named by W. Ashley the early manager of Lake Louise after of Lake Louise after an charming evolutionist of his day Agnes Knox but to honour Sir John A.
Macdonald premier of Canada they told him it was named after his wife Susan Agnes. Mind you how they explained the use of the middle name is not clear.

Similarly Lake Louise was first called Louise after the ^{then} president of the Royal Geographic Society but to honor her Royal Highness Princess Louise they told her it was named after her.

In case you've ever wondered Pelee mountain was not named after a girl friend its the name of ~~an Indian~~ ~~man~~ Talissers Indian guide, but it certainly probably has been used to impress many a gullible young lady

Dear Sir:

It is our intention to include in one of our coming issues, an article of the "hoodoos" in the Banff National Park and we would appreciate a picture of the attached for illustration purposes.

Any other data which you might have on this subject would be greatly appreciated.

Sincerely,
MY GOLDEN WEST
